The Catholic Church and the Freedmen—Letter from Bishop Verot.

The Right Rev Augustin Verot, Bishop of Georgia, has addressed a lengthy letter to the clergy and laity of the Church South, regarding the freedmen, from which we make the following extract

In adopting the course to be followed with regard to the colored race, let no one imagine that we embrace and adopt the doctrine of those false philanthropists, who, under the name of Abolitionists, have done so much mischief, setting aside altogether the sacred rule, "nos sunt facienda sicut et cæmant bona" We hold these men not the people of the North at large, to be the true authors of the contest which has deluged the land in blood they have been the aggressors of the South and the unjust authors of all the evils that have occurred to the country, bound, consequently, to repair all the damages and to atone which the war has inflicted upon the nation When the Apostles spread themselves over the world, they found slavery established everywhere, and they did not teach servants to shake off the yoke of their masters or masters to give up their pretended usurpation but they taught masters and servants that they had one common Master to whom they were accountable, and by teaching kindness and charity to masters and obedience to servants, they established peace everywhere and slavery was abolished, although after the lapse of many centuries, by the slow action of Christian Principles on Christian hearts not because slavery was considered as bad in itself and absolutely immoral in all cases, but because Christians wished to give civil and social equality to those whose souls they considered as precious as their own This is a rational and highly Christian victory, very different from that in which, in the rapid lapse of four years more than two million men have lost their lives in order to free two millions of them But injudicious and unjust is was the means adopted to attain the end we embrace the conclusion fully, sincerely in good faith and irrevocably the more so as the slavery found on the earth at the time of the propagation of the Christian religion had originated in legitimate titles, whereas African slavery seems to have commenced, and to have been kept up by the cruel and evidently unjust proceedings of men kidnapping other men to sell them to the tiger hearted authors and abettors of the slave trade condemned by the Holy See, and forbidden by all enlightened nations the title of former masters was very tottering and nothing more than prescription and the necessity of upholding the existing order of things and avoiding social convulsion The late events have destroyed the last vestige of their title and consequently the former state of things can never be reconstructed without violating all laws and all principles of justice

Here we wish in all sincerity and with great earnestness all kinds of blessings to the colored race and we exhort all to put away all prejudice all dislike all antipathy all bitter feeling against their former masters Away with all feelings of bickering envy or jealousy which would only betray a narrow mind and the lack of noble and elevated feelings The golden rule love thy neighbor as thyself must not admit of any exception and therefore, we call on the faithful to send most fervent and reiterated prayers to the Throne of Grace, that the fathers of the Council may receive light and grace from the Invisible Head of the Church to procure the speedy and efficacious emancipation of the African race

We know the subject is beset with great difficulties which might appear insurmountable to any one that would not remember that there is nothing hard or impossible to God The race is poor and poverty itself, it was transferred from slavery into freedom in an instant and without any possibility to accumulate small earnings, and hence the labor of civilizing them must be performed on a gratuitous foundation, and without even expecting that they who have the Gospel preached unto them will provide for their instructors to live out of the Gospel The ministerial labor among them is not calculated to flatter vanity or self love, or ambition or other incentives which may in other cases support laboring minds But on that occasion, it is but the more worthy of that noble religion which has produced the Peter Clevers, the Rigids and a host of others who have spent all they had and even all themselves in announcing the Gospel to the poor thus evidencing by their heroic deeds this mark of the true religion pointed out by Christ himself The poor have the Gospel preached to them Being in the poor and the feeble and the blind and the lame, go out into highways and hedges and compel them to come in Luke 14 24

We have thus brethren stated to you these particulars in order to excite your zeal and in flame your ardent by making you acquainted with a few of the topics that will be a subject of deliberation to the Bishops assembled This importance not to speak of any other equally momentous to the welfare of the Church will make you enter into the spirit which the present circumstances require and call for God alone is the author of every good gift but he wishes us to ask for those blessings which we do live to obtain from Him that we may thus acknowledge His infinite mercy liberality and power, and our own misery poverty and dependence on Him

Ask and you shall receive seek and you shall find knock and it shall be opened unto you

THE FENIANS IN IRELAND.

A Desperate Fight Imminent—Twenty Thousand Tipperary Men Prepared for Battle.

From New York World

A short time ago I mentioned the Head Centre of the Fenian Brotherhood announced in speech at Jones Wood that he would live but to the close of the present year to command the battle for Celtic independence on Irish soil and he is now preparing to redeem his promise

The arrangements for this movement which will at first only be of a secret character have been made on vast scale commensurate with its importance Nearly twenty thousand men have been received for this purpose, and they will be formed to the Green Isle in a manner which will, it is said, render detection impossible

One of the leading officers of the organization report that there are twenty thousand men ready to fight in Tipperary and the adjoining counties and that they are only waiting the weapons of war to commence the revolution which is designed to get rid of Saxon oppression forever

The Celts in nearly all the counties are also ready for the rising

An important rumor was in circulation at the headquarters that there were two French war vessels ready to sail from a certain port in the United States to Ireland, with rifles and men, which are now subject to the orders of the Head Centre He will also have with the expedition the uniforms of the officers which are of green cloth it being said but the time of their departure is of course a profound mystery It is calculated that at least one hundred thousand Celts will rise against the British government when James Stephens gives the signal for the revolution while the number to be brought against them will not exceed thirty thousand

Candidates for Consulship.

There are thousands of Americans who are anxious to go abroad as Consuls, and their importunities for appointment at the State Department are such that the Secretary has been compelled to issue a circular of instructions to applicants They are informed that they must be over twenty one years of age citizens have taken the oath of allegiance be able to write a good hand, thoroughly acquainted with arithmetic, geography, English Grammar, book keeping, and history, especially that of the United States, &c

They are also required to pass an examination, in addition to the studies above mentioned, in the Consular Manual, Kent's Commentaries, story on the Constitution of the United States, and the text of Wheaton's Elements of International Law, and should also be able to read and write with facility the French, or some other modern language, besides English, and those who possess, in addition, the ability to speak the language of the country where they are to be employed will be preferred People who are anxious to serve their country in these positions can thus see what is required of them

Female Attire—Anna Dickinson.

A correspondent of the Boston Commonwealth, justly censuring the monstrosities of fashionable female dress and adornment, thus compliments Anna Dickinson—whether as justly we cannot say

She keeps the beaten track in the main features of her attire, but within those limits she achieves a rare success—a graceful, bright hued simplicity is far removed from triviality as it is from affectation At a time when the female head is systematically tortured and disfigured, and divested of every grace of contour, she wears her hair in thick wavy masses, cut short like a school girl At a time when multitudinous hardware beads, bugles, and even bells, tinkle and glitter from every "coigne of vantage," when gimp, and velvet, and cord, and ribbon and braid, scollop, dot and point, embroider and intersect, spangle and meander up and down, athwart and around, the festooned and flowing draperies of that devoted sex which need be fair, indeed to keep their loveliness discernable amid such masses of fuss and frippery—at such a time, this girl slips quietly out of all the weary coil, and stands serenely resplendent in some rich, plain fabric, without one atom of so called "trimming" visible from the crown of her queenly head to the sole of her dainty foot There are no circles, nor angles, no circumbient stripes, no distracting details Her dress is a study only for its severe simplicity and absolute fitness in form and color You may describe her costume in three lines, but if you have an artistic eye you are not likely to forget it You remember, if you saw her, sweeping the platform of Music Hall in a pearl colored moire silk, or again in vivid ruby color green, or, called out unexpectedly at some minor assembly in Faneuil Hall, or the Melodeon, in simple black or gray, with a single bright ribbon for contrast or again, as she appeared the other evening at Tremont Temple, in clear corn color, only relieved by a few loops of black lace and a faint inlet of ruche at the throat and wrists No more

There are those, of course, who carp and cavil at this costliness of array—who maintain that a nun like severity, a quaker like meagreness, would more befit the earnestness of her mission, but the Pennsylvania maiden is no quaker and no nun, but a genuine woman one too, with a rich and tropical luxuriance of nature—a woman who was put into the world to fulfill the use of beauty, as well as manifold uses of a sterner kind I think it is Bettine who defines beauty when every atom of matter has become informed with spirit" This is the beauty of our peerless Anna, and it imparts itself to the very robes she wears No narrow stinted, colorless life will suffice her, and she certainly earns the right to live her own life with whatever grace of form or warmth of coloring she may choose to put into it She earns her own money in doing a work that no other woman in either hemisphere can perform so well she spends it generously for others and freely for herself, to gratify the woman and the artist in her own nature, and for this there are plenty to pronounce her unwomanly If she would but spend other people's money instead of her own, if she only furished the substance of her male relatives in velvets, diamonds, and cashmere shawls if she only exhibited herself under the aegis of drawing rooms and if she whispered pretty incentives to pretty young men instead of carrying them with sharp rebukes or stirring them with inspiring words, she would be "womanly past question"

Faults she undoubtedly has not defects merely but positive faults the results of power, not weakness

"The pistil will be a mile
Betwixt their poles
Beat zones of tropic passions!"

But a girl at my side, who loves her with utter devotion, whispers, "Let us thank God for Anna Dickinson, ain't that, indeed we do—for her eloquence with its hundred phases, the indignation that scorches like flame, the sarcasm that cuts like Damascus steel, her fervor outstripping prudence her swift impetuosity and womanlike repentance, for her graceful audacity, her regal scorn and her thrilling pathos, for all the fascinating gifts of the American Hypatia, before whom even Goths and Vandals bow in homage, and yet more, for the simple, practical sense, the steady directness of purpose with which she insists on a remedy for every wrong, whether to the negro of the plantation or the outcast of the street for all these, the outcome of a better than Grecian civilization and humanity, we do with all our hearts thank God for Anna Dickinson!

THE ST. LOUIS EXPLOSION.

Awful Catastrophe—Explosion of a Boiler—Heart rending Scenes.

The St Louis Democrat brings us copious details of the boiler explosion in that city, already noticed by telegraph Occurred at the turning shop of John Vonbrock, on Franklin avenue, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, which shattered the entire building, shook the surrounding buildings like an earthquake, and created the greatest consternation in the neighborhood Large pieces of the boiler were hurled through the air to a distance of 100 yards or more and portions of the timbers of the building were scattered in all directions The building was a three story brick, and the force of the explosion prostrated all of the walls, causing the joists and flooring to fall in a confused mass upon the first floor

There were some 25 or 30 persons at work in the shop at the time of the explosion, all of whom were more or less injured and about half of them killed The adjoining building on the east was also crushed but the inmates were not injured The carriage factory of Edwards Buser adjoining the shop on the west, was totally demolished The whole presented a mass of ruined timbers, brick walls and demolished machinery as though a mountain had fallen upon the buildings and crushed them to the earth

Immediately after the explosion a fire broke out in the ruins and raged with great violence, adding to the horror of the scene The firemen were not slow in unwinding their hose but the crowd pressed upon them, and excited men and women implored them to save their burning houses Stevens paid no attention to these humane entreaties, for his cars were filled with the shrieks and groans of more than a dozen human beings, who were buried in the ruins and wildly crying for help The chief ordered his pipemen to turn their streams upon the burning ruins in which these unfortunate men were imprisoned—some of them crushed and mangled, others dying, and all in danger of being burned to death by the savage flames In a few minutes the fire in this quarter was checked and then the firemen turned their attention to the other burning buildings

As soon as the fire in the ruined shop was extinguished, the firemen, the police and the citizens went to work to remove the debris, and rescue the men who were imprisoned amongst the fallen timbers Vigorously the men worked to remove the timbers and machinery that covered the shrieking workmen, and in the course of an hour twelve were rescued, some of whom were severely injured, and the others more or less burned

Eight or ten dead bodies were exhumed, several of them so burnt and charred that identification was impossible One body had nothing but the shapeless trunk left, the head, arms and legs being all burned away

The wildest excitement prevailed while the work of digging was going on The police could not keep the crowd off and the multitude pressed forward and impeded the progress of the workmen Women rushed frantically upon the ruins to get a look at the dead bodies, in order to ascertain if they were their own friends or relatives, and shrieks of anguish were heard as some mother caught sight of her mangled or dead son

—A correspondent writes that the idea of making Paris a seaport has again revived This time there is no question of cutting costly canals from Paris to the seacoast, but of bringing merchant ships up to the Quai d'Orsay as it is at present The inventor of this scheme is a Captain Brazier, and what he proposes to do is to construct ships of a peculiar make, adapted to the sea, and at the same time capable of reaching Paris in the depth of water afforded by the Seine at an average height.

—A constable in Ohio lately testified in court as follows "I know nothing of her but what I hear the neighbors say, and, in my opinion, what a woman says of another is not worthy of belief."

A Memphis special to the World says there has been a heavy white frost throughout that whole region The damage could not then be estimated, but it was very great

The Times' Washington special still insists that his statements concerning Mexican affairs are correct, those of the Washington Republican to the contrary notwithstanding He also says Mr. Campbell will leave for Mexico as soon as his instructions are completed

The Times' Washington special says General Sherman arrived in this city this evening and is the guest of General Grant This evening General Grant, General Sherman, Senor Romero, Mexican Minister, and Paymaster General Brice formed a party in a private box at the National Theatre. Considerable signification was attached to the composition of the party

General Sherman's arrival is in consequence of the request sent some days since by the President with reference to the prospective change in the War Department and is confirmatory of my previous dispatches on that subject

The President has ordered a pardon to be issued to George B Trenholm, ex rebel Secretary of the Treasury and senior member of the well known firm of Trenholm, Fraser & Co, of Charleston, South Carolina, and Liverpool, England.

The Herald's special insists there is information sufficient in Washington to show there has been no battle nor defeat of the Liberals at Saltillo, as reported

The same special says Smuggling is carried on to an enormous extent on the borders of the State of New York, and measures have been adopted to put a stop to it

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25

Matthew Gibson, a citizen charged with murdering Sergeant Schenck, 6th United States cavalry, in Park county, Texas, has been arrested by civil authorities, and held for trial under bonds. He was afterwards arrested by military order from Gen Heintzelman He was then brought by habeas corpus before District Judge Goode, who decided that the military had no jurisdiction of his offence, he being a citizen

ANNAPOLIS, Oct 26

The Governor has decided to permit the counsel of the Commissioners to examine witnesses. The Governor said that he claimed jurisdiction to try the case and pass judgment upon it, that he was responsible to no tribunal but the Legislature of the State, that he would proceed with the case without paying attention to technicalities, that he intended to reach a decision not later than Wednesday. The Governor also announced that if in the course of the investigation the innocence or guilt of the Commissioners should appear he would act instantly

WASHINGTON, Oct 26.

Accounts from North and Central Alabama show great destitution from the failure of many of the planters who had mortgaged their lands for supplies, but the crops failing the lands are sold at ruinous rates Families and homes are broken up under these forced sales In Greene county alone there are more suits on the Circuit Court docket than there are voters in the county.

QUEBEC, Oct 26

The subscriptions in aid of the sufferers by the fire are progressing favorably. Two thousand dollars were received from the New York Stock Exchange yesterday and the citizens are much pleased with the generous gift. Boston is about forwarding a large donation of clothing.

The weather here is very cold.

NEW YORK, Oct 26

The Chamber of Commerce will meet next week to inaugurate a movement to collect subscriptions for the relief of sufferers by the Quebec fire.

The Evening Express says This morning the ordinary interest in the proceedings of the Fenian trials in Canada was increased by the news that one of the alleged officers of General O'Neil's brigade, Col Lynch, was sentenced to be hung in September next, for an assumed participation in the invasion of the frontier The report soon became the principal topic of conversation in the city, and all classes seemed to condemn the severity of the sentence as unnecessary and inexpedient.

The course of the Canadians during the late war also called forth very unfavorable criticism, in connection with the sentence of Col Lynch. Owing to the news, the head-quarters of Col. Lynch were crowded with anxiously animated rumors concerning the F. B. Two of the leading Generals were present in the ward of the building, and soon after their arrival they were besieged by Fenians, who anxiously inquired what would be done to prevent the execution of the death penalty, or assume retaliation for the action of the Canadian court. In answer to the parties, one of the Generals replied that if Lynch was hung he would engage to capture and execute twelve Canadians to avenge the deed. Should the other prisoners share the same fate, he said their deaths should be avenged in the same way.

Another Fenian General, referring to the sentence, said he had paroled forty Canadians whom he had captured, and provided them with a safe escort beyond the Fenian lines If they hung Lynch, he remarked that it would only have the effect of expediting another invasion of Canada It is believed that President Roberts will take some action on the subject

TORONTO, C W., Oct 26.

Notwithstanding the wet weather, the Court House was densely crowded The interest in the Fenian trials is unabated.

The government prisoner placed in the dock this a. m. was David P Lumsden, who professes to be a clergyman of the Episcopal Church.

Mr Cameron, an able lawyer, appeared for the prisoner, and asked a postponement of the trial to procure two important witnesses, Rev Dr Fuller, of Syracuse, and Bishop Coxe, of Buffalo, the American Consul having undertaken to procure their attendance

Hon J H Cameron, Crown counsel, replied that ample time had been allowed the prosecution to obtain witnesses, but the Crown would put no technical difficulties in the way, and Saturday week was agreed upon for the trial

The next prisoner placed on the dock was John McMahon, a Roman Catholic priest Defendant's attorney challenged only one juror

Mr R A Harrison, in behalf of the Crown, then addressed the jury The indictment contains three counts, charging the prisoner with being an American citizen and as such invading the Province with the intent to levy war Second—After entering continued to act with persons invading the Province The third count charges the prisoner with being with persons who levied war on the Province

Evidence for the Crown The first witness, John Ray, of Fort Erie, swore that he saw Lumsden at Fort Erie on the 1st of June with the Fenians, saw him again with them after the fight at Fort Erie

The next witness, Alfred Wilcox, swore he saw the prisoner at Fort Erie on the 1st of June he was giving orders about some satchels, saw no arms about him

Alexander Milligan next testified that he saw the prisoner, who had a revolver at his side and was advising the Fenians to take care of themselves

Several other witnesses testified to the same effect

No witnesses were called for the defense Mr Cameron then made a speech for the defense, saying that the prisoner, a catholic priest, was forcibly compelled to go with the Fenians to give spiritual comfort to the wounded, that as a priest he could not refuse to attend the wounded, he was on his way to Montreal on private business, when the Fenians took him at Buffalo and compelled his attendance

Hon J H Cameron replied at length, saying that in law the fact of the prisoner having in any way aided in the raid made him equally guilty

The Judge then charged the jury, who, after retiring for nearly an hour, brought in a verdict of "Guilty," and the prisoner was then sentenced to be hanged on the 13th of December next

NEW YORK, Oct 26

In the Supreme Court to-day, before Judge Ingraham, three cases were tried against the Bank of the State of South Carolina, located at Charleston, S C, which were of vital importance to owners of Southern Bank bills, many of which have hitherto been supposed to be valueless The plaintiffs are owners of bank notes issued before and during the rebellion, amounting to $43 000 The defense set up that the bills were void, having been issued by the bank during the Rebellion, and in the support of the Rebellion, in violation of public policy The Judge overruled the defense, and gave judgment for plaintiff on full amount with interest

The Rebel Debt.

English journals are calling attention to the fact that American speculators are buying up the seven per cent. cotton bonds of the late Confederacy. This rebel debt is largely owned in Europe. It will be recollected that after the close of the war the proposition was formally made to our Government to assume the payment of Confederate bonds. The list of the holders of the securities was made public and it was then perceived why members of Parliament and the merchant princes of Manchester and Liverpool, and the editor of the Times and other English journals, were so anxious for the disruption of the Union. They had staked their money on the success of the Confederacy And the reason is also clear why the same Tory press favors Johnson's policy. The reason is obvious why these securities advanced in London when the cable carried them the intelligence of the first Philadelphia Convention. The Constitutional amendment which provides that neither the Federal or State Governments shall assume or pay the rebel debt of course meets with no favor at the South.

For years Confederate bonds and currency were the legal standard of values and medium of exchange at the South, and there are millions of them in their possession now. If this is worthless stuff that impoverishes them They would like to have the North share the burden with them, and if there was not a Constitutional prohibition against it, they might accomplish the object. It only a law of Congress stood in the way they might get that repealed. Admit the Southern States without conditions and they would vote as a unit in Congress on the question of assuming the rebel debt, and through Democratic sympathy and support at the North—through a vast corruption fund easily raised abroad and at home from those who have so deep a pecuniary interest in it, the North might be saddled with double the taxes they are now laboring under Our taxes are now about as heavy as we can bear, and our people cannot be too watchful to guard against any such contingencies as we have indicated.

When once such prohibitory clause is incorporated in the Constitution, we shall feel secure against this danger, and not till then.

The Oil City Fire.

The borough authorities of Oil City are making arrangements with the Water Company to have fire plugs put in at all places in the city where they are needed

Two lives were lost; one of the unfortunates was Mr McIntosh, the engineer of Fisher Bros, who died in consequence of severe burns, and a man whose name is not given, who was drowned by falling oil afloat.

The fire, as before stated, broke out in the lower oil yards of Fisher Brothers, which have a river front, and are located in the rear of Main street, and extended over the oil yards of Weaver, Adams & Co., Thomas B. Porteous, occupied by the National Refinery and Storage Co.; Gallagher & Danner's, Strickler's, and the Lucesco Oil Co, also, burning a dwelling house belonging to the Oil City Storage Company. The latest estimates place the loss at $50,000. The total amount of oil burned will not exceed 4,000 barrels. A good portion of this is covered by insurance, and the loss is but lightly felt, as it falls upon so many parties.

The Fire Department covered themselves with great credit. For eleven hours the firemen worked incessantly, and most of them were completely worn out by the excessive fatigue

The value of iron tanks in resisting fire, was amply demonstrated on this occasion The large iron tank of Fisher Brothers, the capacity of which is 15,000 barrels, was submitted to a fearful test, and came through the fiery ordeal nobly. For eleven hours the side of it next to the burning oil tank was subjected to the most intense heat that can be imagined, and it is uninjured.

Fire Reservoirs—We understand that our City Council are discussing the propriety of placing small reservoirs at the intersection of Walnut and Franklin, Main and Franklin, Main and Perry, Walnut and Washington, and Main and Washington streets, and supplying them with water from Church Run, to be used exclusively in cases of fire. This will afford residents in the upper part of the city equal sources of protection with those enjoyed by property holders in the vicinity of the mill-race and creek.

Right Rev. Kerfoot has been on a visit to the oil regions of late, and has held regular services at Pithole City, at Tidioute, at Titusville, at Petroleum Centre, and at Rouseville. At the latter place he administered the rite of confirmation to several persons on the 23d instant, and an Episcopal Sabbath is to be organized there to-morrow.

Bishop Kerfoot's Address.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Kerfoot addressed the pupils of Appleton Institute yesterday afternoon. His remarks were of a suggestive and practical character, and equally valuable to parents and children. He said he had spent a good deal of his life in the vocation of instructor, and took a special interest in the cause of education. He could only repeat the suggestions which were familiar to them, but coming from the lips of a stranger, they were probably calculated to make a deeper impression. He said that though they were too young, many of them, to realize the importance of the rules that were imposed upon them and the lessons they were required to learn, yet in after life they would discover their bearing and practical uses.

It was true that much of the knowledge acquired in school was subsequently forgotten, still the mind had been disciplined by the acquisition, and the object of education has not simply the accumulation of facts, but to attain the power to think and to reason. He remarked that youth was the seed time for implanting the germs of correct principles and sound knowledge, and that no subsequent diligence or zeal could repair the waste of early neglect, or make up for early deficiencies.

He gave several instances of this character from his own observations, when a man who had attained great success in the walks of business, had become so mortified with a sense of their ignorance of ordinary branches of education, that they had set themselves to school tasks in advanced life, and placed themselves under teachers. He complained of the too prevalent practice in American society of now a-days urging youth into business pursuits at an immature age, and thought it was a short-sighted view, and detrimental to the best interest of the rising generation. He dwelt upon the importance of the various rules of the school room as the regulating principles essential to a well ordered life, to success in business and good conduct in citizenship. Education was a heart work as well as head work, and both should go hand in hand; and in a school, where boys and girls were taught together, the best social results might follow, and true delicacy and gallantry be cultivated. The Bishop concluded with some remarks upon Christian character, observing that education without religion was fatal to morality and deadly to the nation

Now and Then.

Editors Herald—We hear many of our citizens complaining of the times. Business is dull, things move slowly, oil is dull, &c. But they forget entirely the gradual and marked improvement which has been going on around them during the past year. To a stranger visiting Titusville for the first time since last fall, everything seems wonderfully changed for the better The streets have been put in good order, sidewalks made convenient and durable; a large new hotel, equal to anything in Western Pennsylvania, has sprung into existence as if by magic, and even the people themselves seem to devote more time to the amenities and politenesses of social life, now that they are somewhat relieved from the unnatural excitement of overtrade.

We are not of those who think that this city's growth can in any manner be permanently checked, already have we seen the darkest days, things are just now at their lowest ebb, and we confidently hope and believe that the development of this great producing country, must build up a manufacturing business here in our centre, that few at present even dream of. It is always darkest just before daylight. There is too much capital enterprise to permit the mineral wealth of our section to lie long dormant. Brisk times are ahead There's a good time coming, and 'tisn't far away. Stranger.

A New Well on Pioneer.

Special Dispatch to the Morning Herald.

Mr. James Robinson struck a new well to-day on the Haldeman Reserve, near Pioneer City—She pumps and flows largely through both casing and tubing. D

The lecture course for the coming winter in Erie is expected to commence about the 20th of November, and to consist of from 12 to 15 lectures. The committee of the Y. M. C. A. are perfecting their arrangements for the course, which will be announced in a short time.

Correction.—Captain Golding desires us to say that the statement which appeared in the Rochester Union, that he was the Chief of the Police of Titusville, was made on their own responsibility, and was not suggested by him.

One Year.

AFFECTIONATELY INSCRIBED TO MY BROTHER.

[For the Herald.]

It is but one year, my darling,
Since I held thee to my breast,
And yet now the grass is waving
O'er thy narrow place of rest.
It was in the bright September
And the days were soft and clear,
And I dreamed the dream of lovers
As I whispered in thy ear:
"Ere this month shall wane in beauty
Thou will be my own for life;
Mine to guide and cheer and strengthen
Darling! thou shalt be my wife."
And the sun was on thy tresses,
And the love-light on thy face,
As the sweet lips tremblingly answered
With their own peculiar grace:
"Yes, forever and forever!
All your own, and only yours;
And, my dearest! though death claims me
Still in Heaven I am yours."
Thus we whispered till the sunlight
Faded over hills of blue,
Dreaming dreams that were not phantoms
Though they seemed so bright y true.
Ere that month had waned in beauty
I had felt thy dying breath
Faint and fainter touch my forehead,
I had closed thine eyes in death.
And again the bright September
Weaves the sunlight with the shade,
But this time it gilds the marble
Where my cherished hopes are laid.
And instead of love words spoken,
O'er the grave the soft winds moan,
And they murmur, ever murmur
Sadly to my heart. "Alone."
Yes! alone! and yet, not wholly,
For the spirit guides me still;
Onward, upward, ever calling,
I must bow unto His will.
I must learn the patient waiting
Others oft have learned before,
I must learn how empty life is
When compared with that bright shore
Where my darling now awaits me
In her wedding robes of peace,
And where tears and farewell partings,
All, forevermore, will cease. M.

Our Oil Letter—Pioneer City—Interesting Facts—Destructive Conflagration in Oil City—3,000 Barrels of Oil Destroyed, &c., &c., &c.

Correspondence of the Buffalo Courier.

Pioneer City, Oct. 23.

The rapid strides which this place has made toward being the most extensive field for oil speculation, has created a fever of excitement in the Eastern markets.

We distinctly remember the time, during the early part of last spring, while wandering up and down Oil Creek, viewing the remains of Old Sherman and Noble wells, and the many forlorn engines which were left exposed to all kinds of weather by that class of transients who built residences from the boards of an engine house. We can call to mind many items concerning the dilapidated condition of this territory, and its instruments for ejecting the fluid, but we never thought there was a hereafter that would build up a great city, and the daily shipments from new wells would average 2,800 barrels of crude per day.

Still it is nevertheless true, although we regret that this amount has lately depreciated a little, still active exertions are being made by operators to swell the production to its former standard, and we hope yet to chronicle strides from new wells which will yield its owners thousands of barrels of the golden fluid, the result of one day's flow I fear the day is past, and we must countenance a 200, or even a fifty barrel well, at the same time appreciate its value.

The first development made upon the Farm or in the Run, was undertaken in the winter of 1865 and 1866 Our most experienced operators were endeavoring to solve a problem as to the course of the vein, in which they might sink a hole. Whilst this question was agitating their minds a few daring operators ventured up Pioneer Run about half mile from the creek upon what was then termed "Dry Territory" They were the recipients, of many kind jeers from their friends to hazard money and lab r here, but being possessed with a spirit of go-ahead-ativeness and the will of determined men, they secured a lease and inspected a drill, which sunk a hole to the depth of 556 feet, after tubing and a test of a few days' duration, a 150 barrel well crowned them with success

Further operations were delayed until the spring of 1866, when the bustle and excitement concerning this valuable territory was manifested, operators from all parts of the country flocked here and purchased leases, at a bonus price of from $1,000 to $5,000 per acre. The above mentioned well was the Underwood well, named after G W Underwood, Esq, and owned by the Underwood Oil Co J W Irwin, Esq, is the Superintendent, and one of the principal owners.

The Lady Brooks well was struck in April, 1866, and produced when struck 400 barrels. It is now producing about 100 barrels. Owned by the Hoskins Oil Co.

The Lady Stewart well was struck in April, 1866, and produced 200 barrels.

The Union well in Great Western Run, a tributary of Pioneer, was also struck in April, 1866, and produced 175 barrels per day. In attempting to draw the tubing from this well, she commenced flowing at the rate of 500 barrels; the tubing had been drawn but five feet, showing to its owners that they had tubed too low in the first place It soon diminished to some extent, yet doing finely. Owned by the Union Oil Company, Messrs. Underwood, Hoskins, Stewart and William Wood, Esq. Queen of the Bluff was struck in May, 1866, and produced 160 barrels per day; depth 595 feet. The Andrews well, in Western Run, was struck in July, 1866, and quietly ejected 350 barrels per day The largest pumping well in the world; depth 628 feet; owned entirely by F. W. Andrews, Esq, of Cleveland, Ohio, who has for the past few years sunk several wells, meeting great success.

The Lourie well was struck in June, 1866, and produced 75 barrels In casing this well the production was increased to 125 barrels. It is owned by the Great Western Oil Works of Messrs, Lourie

The Chatfield well was struck in August and produced 75 barrels per day This well was lately eased and she is now producing nearly double her former production She is owned by Mr. Chatfield W. Lourie and A. R. Williams, Esq

The Foster Farm is situated in Pioneer Run or rather rising back toward Oil Creek This territory has become famous, several wells have been sunk and are yielding largely E C Bishop, Esq, controls the land interest of this farm, and is also the agent There are three wells producing nearly 900 barrels daily, while several others are doing from 60 to 200 barrels The farm comprises 111 acres and is, without doubt, the best territory in this vicinity. The Shoe and Leather Petroleum Oil Company own in fee five acres, running parallel along the line in the run They have several fine wells which are producing finely. D Harris, Esq, is the agent and is also largely interested in the leases. L S Potter, Esq, is Superintendent of the Foster Farm Oil Company, and is also a large stockholder.

The Great Western oil works are situated at the mouth of Great Western Run and is owned by Messrs W Lourie and A R Williams, of Titusville, and W C. Schofield, Esq, of Cleveland, Ohio 300 barrels of refined oil is run through their large distillery weekly. "Oop T. Goop."

They have a set of a hundred and twenty bells, graduated to the musical scale, and equivalent to seven octaves—the only genuine set of pure-toned bells ever imported into the United States. The Berger Family, vocalists and instrumental performers, have been added to the troupe of bell-ringers, making the combination a strong one. We bespeak for them a generous reception, which they will fully reward in their performances. See advertisement.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

New York, October 26.

The Post's money article says the languid depression of yesterday has been followed by a feverish speculative reaction, which extends to most of the speculative securities. The lead is taken by the O C & N W among the Railroad shares, and Cumberland and Quicksilver among the miscellaneous. The loan market opened strong and firm, the improvement being sustained till the close of business. After the regular board the quotations were: New York Central 120¾, Reading 116¼; Michigan Southern 92¾; Pittsburgh 92¾; Chicago and Northwestern 74¾; Toledo 120; Rock Island 109¾; Pittsburgh and Fort Wayne 109¾. PETROLEUM MARKETS.

Titusville, October 26.

The Petroleum Market continues dull with a slight change from yesterday's quotations. For some time past the Pittsburgh buyers have not been in the market extensively, on account of the creek and river being low. But few sales have taken place, and in most cases where sales have been made, the producers have been forced to sell, in consequence of not having sufficient tankage.

Eastern advices state that the Crude Petroleum Market remains still dull and inactive.

The sales reported yesterday were as follows: 1,500 bbls on Pioneer at $2 50; a lot of two car loads at $2 50; another lot, of fourteen car loads, at same price; 800 bbls at Pithole, terms not stated, and a large lot at Petroleum Centre at $2 50.

PITTSBURGH OIL MARKET.

[Special to the Morning Herald.]

Pittsburgh, October 26

Dealers watched the lowering clouds and observed the direction of the wind anxiously this morning, speculating the while on a rise in the river and a change in the ruling figures of the Oil Market Up to the hour of noon, however, we saw no prospect for a realization of either hope

The market continues to rule dull and unsettled, and will probably remain so until we have a rise in the Allegheny.

Crude—Nothing has transpired worthy of special notice. We note one sale 210 bbls in bulk at 12¾c. Offers to sell at 12c on first rise are reported with no takers The market may be quoted fairly at 12@12¼c, and 17@17½c bbls returned and included.

Refined—We report some further inquiry for bonded Oil, but the market may be considered weak, with a downward tendency. Sales of 500 bbls at 30½c free on cars here, or 20 days; 500 bbls November delivery at 37½c; 500 bbls free on cars here at 31c. Prices may be given to-day at 30½ to 31c free on cars here, and 37 to 37½c Philadelphia delivery.

Free Oil—There is nothing doing in this commodity.

ALL THE OIL—NO ROYALTY.

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO PARTIES WHO WANT TO DOG FOR OIL

The undersigned has a new system in the oil business. He offers the following inducements that almost every person who has money to invest in Oil Lands, or who has land that he wishes to lease, can find it for his interest to call on him.

1st I will give all the oil to Union, exclusively to the Company, Town and Well.

2d I will give Bonds for Drilling and Engine Houses on all my leases.

3d I will work with and fully help the party who shall have the privilege of purchasing from me half the interest in any portion which shall be located at a nominal price. The price to be agreed upon when the work is made, for the land, and the work.

The undersigned has expended thousands of dollars during the last seven months in developing the Oil Fields of Venango and Warren counties, and has the satisfaction of having the oil region of Bear Run Oil Company, which he helped to develop and which now is one of the best producers in the region.

Parties desiring to see the wells, and the results of the work, can do so by calling on the undersigned.
